- 1 The average commuter can deduct over $3000 from their annual income – just by driving to work and keeping a some simple records! Normally, just commuting to a job from home is not a tax-deductible expense. However, driving from a home-based business to a job can be a tax-deductible expense because you are driving from one income-producing location to another.
- 2 Office supplies just as computer accessories, printer cartridges, paper, etc. are tax deductible with a home-based business!
- 3 You know that internet service and cell phone that cost over $100 per month? Those expenses are deductible per IRS rules – if you have a home-based business!
- 4 Family vacations can turn into huge tax savings – if the trips are business related! There are of course IRS rules regarding this, but considering the rising costs of gasoline and airfare, can you really afford to pass up this massive savings idea?
- 5 How you can pay for your children's expenses with tax-free money -- for example clothes, tuition, sports equipment, music lessons, car expenses, and more! By simply employing your children in your home-based business, their income becomes a tax-deductible expense. You can then use all or a portion of that income to pay their expenses.
- 6 How you can deduct a portion of your everyday expenses of being a homeowner or renter: for example mortgage payments, rent payments, utilities, home repairs, insurance, house-cleaning services, trash collection, and more! Since you are operating a business out of your home, the portion of your home used for business equals the portion of your expenses that are business deductions.
- 7 Entertainment expenses such as football games, golf outings, theater tickets, fancy dinners – all can be business deductions! Again there are IRS rules regarding this, but the key is that the entertainment activity is related to your home-based business and that you keep good records.

Of course, it goes without saying that for you to take advantage of home-based business tax deductions – you must first have a home-based business! That is why you will be personally contacted by someone after you submit your information. Not only do we have the free report on tax savings, we have a simple home-based business to go along with it! This is a very easy process, and it only takes about 5 to 10 minutes.

Your contact will ask you a few easy questions and then send you more information. You will be well on your way to some huge savings, plus making a secondary income that can be used to pay off debt, replace a spouse's income, pay for college, save for retirement, etc.
